

Field schools & polar training programmes

The Swiss Polar Institute (SPI) supports the participation of advanced master's or doctoral students in international summer/field schools and training programmes on polar topics.

Funding is available for students from all disciplines interested in attending academic programmes to deepen their understanding of polar or remote high-altitude regions.

Successful applicants can receive up to CHF 1'500. Students can choose between the schools and programmes selected by the SPI. Participation in other equivalent courses may be granted under certain conditions.
